The shift that changes everything

The Content Is Not The Container

Most people think they have a content creation problem. They do not. They have a content recognition problem.

Videos, posts, emails, podcasts, captions, and carousels are containers. The content is the valuable thing inside your business that is already being said, known, believed, decided, documented, or done.

RECOGNIZE -> CAPTURE -> PACKAGE -> DISTRIBUTE

The sequence moves from hidden value to usable marketing assets.

C.A.P.(TM): WHERE VALUABLE CONTENT IS HIDING

C

Conversations

Everything you say is content.

A

Authority

Everything you know, think, and believe is content.

P

Process

Everything you do is content.

PART ONE

Recognition Scorecard

Enter one number from 1 to 5 for each statement.

C - CONVERSATIONS

1. I record the questions customers and prospects ask repeatedly.

2. I preserve the exact words clients use to describe their problems and desired results.

3. I turn objections from sales calls, DMs, and comments into teaching opportunities.

4. I document useful insights immediately after calls, coaching sessions, or meetings.

5. I review conversations regularly to identify recurring themes and content opportunities.

A - AUTHORITY

6. My content demonstrates what I know instead of only claiming that I am an expert.

7. I explain how I diagnose problems, make decisions, and determine what matters.

8. I communicate the beliefs, standards, and philosophies behind my work.

9. I correct industry misconceptions with a clear and distinctive point of view.

10. A new viewer can understand why my approach is different from similar providers.

PART TWO

Recognition Scorecard

Complete the Process pillar, then calculate your results.

P - PROCESS

11. I show the preparation and decisions that happen before the finished result.

12. I document my workflow, client journey, and behind-the-scenes operating systems.

13. I explain why I make specific creative, strategic, or business decisions.

14. I capture transformation and proof throughout the work - not only at the end.

15. My team or collaborators know which moments should be captured as marketing assets.
